Call ten listed therapists. Eight are ghosts.

Senate Finance staff called 120 listings and booked 18%.

The law says re-check every 90 days.

Today that is a call centre asking five questions.

One click. Forty calls. The register fills itself.

Every change has a clip.

Click a struck-through cell. Hear the receptionist say it.

SIMULATED OFFICE - NO REAL CLINIC WAS CALLED

It refuses to guess.

“I think so?” is not written down. A gate in code decides, not the prompt.

150 of 150 fields right. 0 false writes.

40 recorded calls scored against hidden truth sheets. The gate refused 5 writes. About $0.08 per listing.

How it uses AssemblyAI

Voice Agent API on both ends of every call

Seven JSON-schema tools, one write per clear answer

Temporary tokens: the key never reaches the browser

Key terms built from the row being verified

Refusals return as tool errors the agent follows

Audio sent only around speech, for steady turn-taking

Who pays, and for what

Buyer: the provider-data team at a US health plan.
The work is mandated every 90 days.

A manual verification call costs “several dollars”
(vendor benchmark). Ours cost $0.08 in API time.

From 2028 Medicare Advantage plans must re-verify and publish accuracy scores; states must run secret-shopper calls.

Practices already spend $2.76B a year answering directory requests (CAQH survey, 2019).

Price per verified listing, with the audio evidence included. Our assumption: well under half the manual cost.

Same engine, next markets: any fact that only a phone call can answer.

What exists, and what is different

Call centres. Today's default. Slow, several dollars a call, no evidence kept.

Enterprise vendors. Voice outreach sold to large plans. Validates the buyer. Closed, no public proof.

Rollcall. Every written value carries its audio. A gate in code refuses guesses. Scored in public against truth sheets.

What comes next

NEXT

Real phone lines over SIP. Phone menus, hold queues, voicemail.

THEN

A pilot sweep with one plan's real directory, offices told in advance.

LATER

The 2028 audits: accuracy reports a plan can file, with evidence per listing.

Now you be the front desk.

rollcall-sage.vercel.app → Answer a call. What you say becomes row 41.

CASCADIA HEALTH PLAN AND EVERY OFFICE ARE SIMULATED. NO REAL CLINIC WAS CALLED.
